Wilderness First Responder
January 12-19, 2019

The WFR is a weeklong medical training course that teaches the skills required to respond to and manage medical emergencies in remote settings. Wilderness medicine differs significantly from conventional medical emergency response courses and programs that are oriented toward the urban environment. This course teaches participants how to handle medical emergencies when help is miles away and calling 9-1-1 isn't an option.

Who Should Participate?
The WFR is an excellent (often required) certification for anyone working in a leadership position in an outdoor/backcountry setting. Adventurers, Park Rangers, Outdoor Leaders, Guides, SAR Team Members, Wildlife Officers and Camp Counselors can all benefit from the training.

What to expect?
Fun, intense and comprehensive curriculum involving in-depth, hands-on learning experiences that operates in all weather conditions. This is not a “book only” course! Participants will apply learned skills in mock emergency scenarios in all weather conditions. Sessions will be conducted daily with the addition of one or two evening/night sessions.

Who Teaches the Course?
The course is taught by an instructor from SOLO- a leader in the wilderness medical instruction.

Evaluation and Certification
Participants are evaluated throughout the course via written test and practical skill(s) application. Participants who successfully complete the course will earn a 3-year WFR certification.
