CONSTITUTION OUTLINE

A good constitution is a statement outlining the basic principles agreed to by the members of your organization. It established the structure and purposes of the organization, the methods of selecting members and officers, and the powers and responsibilities of each. Your constitution will be organized in a variation of an outline form; you may find it helpful to divide the outline into articles and sections, but it does not need to follow that format.

    II. General purpose/goal of the organization

ARTICLE II: MEMBERSHIP
    I. Who is eligible to be a member of your organization?
    II. How are the members selected? (i.e.: open to all, application, ballot, etc.)
    III. Qualifications and responsibilities of the members

ARTICLE III: EXECUTIVE BOARD/OFFICERS
    I. What are the different positions?
    II. Who is eligible for each position?

    VI. How are the vacant positions filled if necessary?

ARTICLE IV: ADVISOR
    I. Who is it? (not a specific name)
    II. How is the adviser chosen? (i.e.: part of a position for an FPS, selected by members)
    III. Qualifications and responsibilities of the adviser

ARTICLE V: MEETINGS
    I. How often does the organization meet?
    II. Who presides over the meeting/what happens?
    III. Who must attend?
