

Pam Frigot

Job: Director of International Services. Our office is in the import/export business: we bring international students to SRU, assist them during their stay and send SRU students overseas. We also work with faculty coming and going.

Joined University: August 1975 as a student and have been here ever since with the exception of a year and a half in the late 1980s.

Background: I worked for two years in London before returning to SRU to work for International Studies, which has been renamed International Services.

Interests: Nothing makes me happier than watching my son play soccer. I enjoy gardening, cooking, traveling, Pittsburgh sports and fitness.

Last book read: "Anna Karenina" by Leo Tolstoy.

Why I work at The Rock: Slippery Rock University has evolved in many ways since I first came here. But two things remain constant and make it a special place: students come first and the education that they receive is remarkable thanks to the time that they get to spend with our faculty. There are so many other opportunities outside of the classroom for education and growth too.
