

I am The ROCK

Corinne Gibson

Job: Director, Office of Multicultural Development.

Joined SRU: July 2009.

Background: I'm originally from Camden, N.J., and received my bachelor's degree in public health from Richard Stockton University and master's degree in higher education administration from Rowan University. I then worked at Pennsylvania State University in first-year students residence life before my opportunity to pursue my doctor in education from the University of Pittsburgh. I have finished my coursework and am completing my dissertation.

Interests: I really enjoy learning about all different cultures and their foods, music and dances. I play piano, clarinet and drums and really enjoy live jazz.

Person(s) I would like to have dinner with: Oprah Winfrey for her insight.

Why I work at The Rock: My main reason for choosing The Rock is to make a difference in our students' college journey. The cultural experiences allow students to explore and learn from the many cultures surrounding them. These opportunities will hopefully help them to become globally aware, culturally competent and socially responsible individuals.
