About the Program

The modern languages and cultures department’s mission is to prepare students for the challenges of an increasingly interconnected world. Our main goal is to enable the acquisition of world languages and cultural knowledge so that our students may succeed professionally in a global society and respect diversity. We aim to educate world citizens who will acquire linguistic skills and cultural competencies by taking into account the perspectives of target cultures.

We achieve these goals by:

• Providing dynamic and rich classroom experiences.
• Sponsoring extra-curricular activities.
• Offering direct contact with foreign cultures through an expansive study abroad program and providing travel opportunities to the following countries:

Why study a modern language?

• Knowing more than one language gives students a competitive edge in the job market.
• Acquiring new languages provides personal enrichment by connecting the individual to the worldwide community.
• Taking a modern language course at SRU helps fulfill goal requirements in the global community block of the Liberal Studies Program.
• Passing the 103 level in any language satisfies the language requirement for the Bachelor of Arts degree in any discipline.

Course Placement and Exemptions

A placement test will determine the best course match for each individual if students have previous foreign language knowledge. Students can take this 15 to 20 minute computer-based placement test during orientation or any time in the modern languages and cultures department. To receive academic credit for previous experience, students may take the College Level Examination Program before enrollment in a foreign language course.

Modern languages and cultures graduates are prepared for a variety of fields, including social work, health care, safety, criminology, education, business, professions in law and tourism. “I like the Professional French major because I am able to take it as a secondary major without having any conflicts with my first major schedule. It also allowed me to spend a semester in France, which makes me more marketable to potential employers.”
- Abigail Benninger
(Double major Resort, Rec and Hospitality and Professional French)

“I declared the Professional Spanish major because I knew I wanted to use Spanish in my future and work with Hispanic populations in Public Health. I love the major because it allows me to learn more about my field (Public Health) in another language. People always say that knowing another language will help you find jobs, but knowing another language that is actually specific to my field (Public Health) is going to be an even greater benefit.”
- Rachel Good
(Double major Professional Spanish and Public Health)
