

SRU Master's of Arts

Student Affairs in Higher Education

Learning Outcomes

1

Graduates will be able to demonstrate an orientation to active learning in service to their ongoing professional development.

2

Graduates will design, conduct, and interpret research and assessment that informs professional practice and decisions.

3

Graduates will be able to conduct themselves as ethical practitioners, which includes acting as allies and advocating for clients/students.

Graduates will communicate information effectively through written documents, oral presentations, discussions, and technology.

4

5

Graduates will be able to utilize relevant research and theory to interact with and advance the missions of higher educational institutions.

Graduates will be able to appropriately demonstrate the use of interpersonal and intervention skills to effectively work with the broad range of constituents and stakeholders in higher education.

6

Graduates will be able to identify social inequities in higher education and advocate for inclusion and support for marginalized populations.

7

Graduates will promote and support student learning and development by creating intentional learning opportunities for students informed by relevant research and theory.

8

Graduates will demonstrate professional workplace attitudes and behaviors appropriate for a student affairs practitioner.

9

