

CAREER RESPONSIBILITIES

The collaborative art of theatre brings a full range of artistic, intellectual, and technical skills to bear on the analysis, preparation, performance, and criticism of the theatrical event. The playwright, actors, director, scenic and lighting designer, makeup artist, stage manager, and technicians all help produce what the audience finally experiences in the auditorium. As a theatre major, you will explore the nature of the art form, will have the chance to broaden and deepen your knowledge of acting, directing, history, and technical theatre before heading on to advanced studies or launching a career in such areas as regional or professional theatre, film, television, and arts management.

Skills Associated with Theatre Majors:

- Appreciation of written and oral communication; strong public speaking ability
 - Desire to influence others
 - Poised and self-confident
 - Ability to respond spontaneously
- Ability to understand and communicate information
- Friendly, outgoing, creative, work well under pressure
- Understand and communicate forms and strategies in other cultures
